Pathway Ally

Share your field, open a door to a conversation and help students see where their interests could lead.

Flexible · one conversation, a session or a short series

ABOUT FUTUREWOVEN

FutureWoven is an eight-week learning and mentoring experience for high school and college students, offered by The Thread Movement. Students explore what has shaped them, discover strengths and try possibilities for school, work and life through quiltmaking. Each cohort brings together 20 students for two hours a week.

ABOUT YOU

- You enjoy talking about your work and how you got there
- You can explain your field in plain, welcoming language
- You are open to questions about pathways that were not straight lines

THE ROLE

- Join a career conversation, panel or small-group session
- Help students connect interests and transferable skills with learning and career pathways
- Offer feedback as students practice telling the story of what they are learning
- Suggest accessible first steps and resources

WHY YOU MATTER

> Students can aim for the possibilities they can see. Your story can make a pathway visible.

THE TIME COMMITMENT

Preparation	A short planning conversation with our team
Your session	Scheduled around your availability
Follow-up	Optional, as you are able

Details are confirmed with you before you begin. Roles that work directly with students may require screening, such as a background check.

Apply online: thethreadmovement.com/futurewoven/volunteer/apply
Questions: hello@thethreadmovement.com